

How to Take Great Children's Photos:

By Jody Roy, Flutter By Naturally

1 - Take the pictures in natural settings. Take them to a park or playground and let them be kids. Get pictures of them sliding, swinging, digging in the sand, reading a book etc., doing the things they love to do and being themselves then their personality comes through and you remember their uniqueness.

2 - When taking children it is important that you get down to their level. If you shoot down at them you get weird angles and "bags" under their eyes.
